What made you choose to work in the construction industry?

The construction industry is a very fast paced environment where no two days are the same. It's a constant change in tempo which ensures you'll never be bored or run out of things to do. The industry is very rewarding especially when you can psychically see a building that you've worked on and played a part in completing the project.

If you could choose three words to summarise and describe working in the construction industry, what would they be?

1. Rewarding
2. Strategic
3. Challenging

What do you enjoy most about working for Tilbury Douglas?

I like working with a large variety of people from different roles to come together and complete a project. The people within the company are great and we all really push each other to be the best we can be.

What would your advice be to women considering a career in construction?

Just go for it! It's an excellent career path to go down and you shouldn't be reluctant to go down this route just because you are a woman. The overall perception of the industry is slowly changing and we need more women on board to help with this.
